“ [I started this condolence and suddenly it disappeared. I am rewriting it] Last night I spoke to my Oregon residing sister about Chuck, about how his email to me had suddenly stopped around three years ago. Today, thanks to my sister's research, what I had feared--I now know why they stopped. There are currently no condolences on the page. It figures. I'm saddened that there is such a brief obituary and no condolences, but Chuck was self-admittedly a loner. He had few friends, if any, other than me, but I want to tell you how much love I had for him. I would really like to send the entire portfolio of email that Chuck and I had exchanged since 2008 to present him in his true light. I never met him. A mutual friend sent me a letter that Chuck had written to him, and, so impressed was I that I begged for his address. I nicknamed him Le Roi de l'Oregon "The king of Oregon." We immediately became great friends. If the person who wrote this obituary is still around, I'd like to hear from him or her. Rest in Peace, Roi. I miss you.
