

George K Diepenbrock

January 31, 2026

George Kenneth Diepenbrock passed into the next realm Saturday, January 31, 2026 to soar with the Snow Moon. He was 67. George spent his early years in Ferguson Missouri. Then, entering the Army, he graduated to the rank of Master Sargent.

After his Army days, George worked as a technician who could fix most anything but preferred music related equipment. He was most proud to be "Guitar George", who played rock, jazz and classical styles for over 50 years.

He retired from the "Rat Race" in 2000, becoming fulltime Cat Daddy.

He met his wife, Leigh Ann (Tevault), in 1976 where they joined hands for only a bit. Then fate reunited them marrying in 1992. After over 20 years in Lawrence Kansas, relocation to the Pacific Northwest's forest and ocean, in 2016 ,began his last adventure. He is now surrounded by Buster, Lester, Bobster, Shyster, Chester, Webster, Mobster, Sister Gracie and Booster.

Leigh survives George at their retirement home in South Beach Oregon, along with Minister, Cookie Monster and Zester. He is also survived by his mother Joan (Stockwell) Diepenbrock, sister Cheryl Hawkins, and nieces Lindy Hawkins and Erin Scott, all of Manchester Missouri.

At this time there will be no local services. A celebration of Life will be held in St Louis at a future date.

Consciousness is gone, the carbon, potassium, hydrogen and oxygen live on.

They existed billions of years before they culminated into his consciousness, and will exist for a billion years after.

Star Dust.

“ I met George when he was 15 at Jesse Park. He was a wild kind of guy and we hung in overlapping circles in those years. We didn't really hang out much until later in years. If I have one distinct memory of George it was that he was the only other person I know who loved a very strange Japanese cartoon from the sixties called “Tobor the 8th Man”. I knew he was because he knew the title song also... Call Tobor, the eighth man...
